Dr. Gail O. Mellow is President of LaGuardia Community College in NYC, one of the most ethnically diverse campuses in the U.S. LaGuardia is a two-year public college, serving over 50,000 students, two-thirds of whom are New Americans. Their students pursue baccalaureate education at over twice the national average. It is a leader in using e-portfolios for teaching and assessment. During her seven year tenure, the college has won numerous awards and achievements. Dr. Mellow spearheads local economic development with LaGuardia's Small Business Development Center, and NY Designs, a business incubator for design professionals. Dr. Mellow is the co-author of three books and more than thirty articles. Her third book, "Minding the Dream: The American Community College", is being released on January 11, 2008. She received an A. A. from Jamestown Community College, a B.A. from SUNY Albany, and her M.A. and Ph.D. from The George Washington University.