Taking Responsibility for your Academic Life!

First, we want to welcome our entering class to LaGuardia Community College. We are excited that you have chosen us to be a part of your educational journey. We also want to extend a warm welcome to our returning students.

As the Spring 2012 semester is in full swing, the academic advisors, are gearing up for another advisement period. For the advising staff, peak advisement time (May/June and November/December) conjures up images of extended office hours and multiple meetings with frazzled advisees, some of whom are ill-prepared and eventually become overwhelmed. So for a more mutually fulfilling and beneficial experience it is of vital importance that students take more responsibility for their academic life and that they do so earlier in the semester - even as early as the beginning of the semester!

As academic advisors we are here for you, however, ultimately you must take ownership of your education. Taking ownership requires you to become an active participant, so here are a few tips to consider BEFORE you meet with your advisor.

Come prepared for the advisement session. This preparation entails the following:

1) Make a decision about your major and then begin to ask yourself questions about your field of study and your specific occupation. You can also start to formulate questions and get some more self-study by accessing eCareer at http://www.lagcc.cuny.edu/ecareer/.

2) Review your degree audit using DegreeWorks and/or the College Catalog. Review the course descriptions, the pre-requisites and co-requisites and the classes you are required to take during the various sessions either Fall or Spring I or II. Since students are acclimatizing themselves to the college environment I encourage you to meet with us at your earliest convenience.

3) Very often we meet students who choose to change their major so we encourage them to first meet with their academy coordinator to discuss the advantages, disadvantages, and when to change your major so it does not affect your financial aid and degree requirements.

4) Integrate your career goals with your academic goals, so then we can explore and begin to plan for your future beyond LaGuardia.

Challenging Expectations

Xiao Xiao Li

“I didn’t know myself, and I wanted to change to lead a purposeful life,” says Xiao Xiao Li about her move to the United States. She arrived five years ago as an international student from China and immediately started at LaGuardia, first as a TELC student and now as a major in Liberal Arts: Social Science and Humanities.

Xiao Xiao wants to become an oral interpreter and teacher. She will be graduating in fall 2012 when she will transfer to Queens College and major in Linguistics. “I want a career in something I like, and I have the capacity and am passionate about language,” she says. She will start learning Spanish next semester, and wants to master Japanese, Korean and Cantonese.

Welcome to the Spring semester! If you are new to the College, we’re thrilled to have you join our community. If you’ve been here a while, we hope you’re excited to start the new term. We have been lucky enough to enjoy a mostly mild New York City winter, so it’s not too hard to transition into spring-like thinking. Every new semester offers you an opportunity to renew your commitment to your studies. But just like a springtime garden, your identity as a student needs nurturing.

As you chart a course toward success this term and beyond, you can check on the progress you’re making toward your goals and even set new ones. We can think of goal setting in terms of SPRING itself:

S – significant: Make your goals meaningful and special to you. Everyone wants to get good grades; what about that is important specifically to your own progress?

P – positive: Your goal should be written down using words that keep you motivated. “I can meet people who share MY interests by joining a club!” is one example.

R – realistic: Can you achieve the goal in the time you’ve decided to achieve it? If you want to try the free tutoring the College offers this semester, perhaps telling yourself you will see the tutor six times in 12 weeks will be manageable.

I – improving: Think about how this goal will make you a better student overall. If you decide to study for one extra hour each day, those study habits will help you with all your classes.

N – necessary: The goal you set should be an important part of your student identity. Running for Student Government Association officer for next year may be one way you can express your interest in political science.

G – gratifying: How will you feel if you achieve your goal? Imagine the end result of following through.

You can cultivate your scholarly self by setting goals with SPRING in mind. The new semester gives you the chance to engage new professors and mentors, seek new perspectives, and find new successes. As you grow and move toward completing your degree, we wish that your time with us is filled with experiences that enable you to exchange ideas with new friends and explore all the resources the campus has to offer. Best wishes for a great semester!

What is a Generalist?

The Student General Services Department (SGS) is the College’s one-stop customer service area supporting the functions of both The Office of the Registrar and Student Financial Services. SGS connects students to various support services on campus and manages general inquiries regarding student registration, billing, financial aid application status, etc.

SGS opened in July 2010 as part of an Effectiveness Plan put forward by the Division of Student Affairs to improve the Enrollment Services Center (ESC) C107. SGS’s specialized staff, hereafter referred to as Generalists, includes full/part time staff that underwent extensive “cross-training” supporting both Registrar and Financial Aid functions. This service model allows students to get all the assistance they need and the confidence that their issues will be handled in an expedient fashion.

The creation of the SGS department and the Generalist has improved student services and virtually eliminated students standing in line, even at C107’s busiest times. Please look out for more information on our services in our soon to be launch website.

Currently, Xiao Xiao is president of the College’s honor society and the Student Advisory Committee Liaison for the Chinese Student Club, for which she was previously the president as well. The LaGuardia Foundation has awarded her two scholarships for the 2011-2012 academic year.

Eventually, she wishes to join a non-profit organization that will allow her to teach in impoverished areas. Her ultimate goal is to return to her country to open a gratuitous middle school. “I want to be like my teachers in China. They taught me that education is everything,” she adds.

New York Needs LaGuardia Students!

Sixty students reaped the benefits of a workshop focused on helping them apply to the New York Needs You Fellowship Program (NYNY). Violetta Ciccotto and Gino Tarabotto, two current LaGuardia NYNY Fellows, shared their experience and advice on the essays and application process, followed by a Q&A session.

In addition, the 2011-2012 President’s Fellow, Sihyun Kim ’09, spoke about the importance of networking, one of the main features of the program. NYNY’s mission it to connect ambitious, first-generation college students with leading industry professionals in various organizations and agencies like Goldman Sachs, The New York Times, and the Department of Homeland Security. Fellows are paired with mentors who guide them through resume drafting, interviewing and networking. Students are also placed in internships and receive a $2500 stipend.

“As someone who has gone through law school, I know firsthand that getting a good job isn’t all about getting good grades. It’s really about who you know.” Kim is a law student at the University of Chicago Law. “I wish we had this program when I was a student at LaGuarda,” he added.

The Office of the President arranged the workshop to help boost the appeal of its first-generation students in the job market.

Budget Letter Alert? Action time is limited

Dear Member of the CUNY community:

Please take a moment to visit www.supportcuny.org.

The 2012 13 New York State Executive Budget for CUNY is currently under review by the State Legislature. Time is of the essence. This year the Legislature has accelerated the budget timetable. Budget conference committees will be starting early and the Legislature is aiming to finish passage of the budget one week prior to the April 1st deadline. We need your help now to seek improvements to the budget for CUNY.

We are asking for additional support, consistent with record student enrollment increases and the importance of maintaining and enhancing the quality of education and student services. CUNY is seeking a community college base aid increase this year of at least $100 per full time equivalent (FTE) student. Over the past four years base aid has been reduced by over 20% or $553 per FTE.

We need to expand the highly successful ASAP program to all associate degree programs. ASAP graduation rates have soared. Such an investment is the key to a productive, well-educated State and City workforce.

The University is requesting capital construction and renovation funds to continue creating modern and safe classrooms and laboratories at the senior and community colleges to replace antiquated facilities. This will help stimulate economic development, promote job growth, and meet today’s educational technology standards.

We need to restore funding at all colleges for disabled students, childcare, and related student support. Improved student services are essential to higher retention and ultimately graduation.

Please contact state legislators now. Visit www.supportcuny.org. You can easily send letters to many legislators by utilizing those drafted to assist you or by sending your own. Thank you very much for your help.

Sincerely,
Jay Hershenson
Sr. Vice Chancellor for University Relations and Board Secretary

Please go to: www.supportcuny.org, scroll to the middle of the page and choose one of the letters to send to New York State legislators.

We want you to be proactive in your college advisement process. Think ahead! Write down your questions and bring them with you. Do your research – review the college requirements for your major or area of interest either in your catalog, academic calendar or the college website and attend our informational sessions. Follow these few simple steps and you will become a better advocate for yourself and your advising experience will be more rewarding and less stressful. So here’s to you – take charge and assume responsibility for your academic life and it will be one of the best decisions you will ever make!

National Nutrition Month 2012

Healthy Web Surfing

We realize that many people utilize the internet for research purposes and offer the following suggestion. The National Library of Medicine’s MedlinePlus Guide to Healthy Web Surfing offers suggestions for evaluating the quality of health information on Web sites.

The National Library of Medicine’s MedlinePlus Evaluating Internet Health Information Tutorial is a 16 minute presentation that also teaches you how to evaluate health information found on the Web.

National Nutrition Month is a nutrition education and information campaign created annually in March by the American Dietetic Association. The campaign focuses attention on the importance of making informed food choices and developing sound eating and physical activity habits. The theme for March 2012 is “Get your Plate In Shape.”

The food and physical activity choices made today—and everyday—affect your health and how you feel today and in the future. Eating right and being physically active are keys to a healthy lifestyle.

Eating well can lower your chance of developing cancer and for preventing other diseases like heart disease, hypertension, diabetes and obesity. In addition, because our nutrient needs change as we get older, it is important to know which foods offer the vitamins and minerals that will promote good health as we age.

Help feel your best by learning how to make healthy food choices—especially those that are lower in calories and packed with vitamins, minerals, fiber and other nutrients—and by being physically active every day.

Diet

A “healthy diet” is one that provides enough of each essential nutrient, contains a variety of foods from all of the basic food groups, provides adequate energy to maintain a healthy weight, and does not contain excess fat, sugar, salt or alcohol. Information on the Dietary Guidelines is available on the HealthierUS.gov Dietary Guidelines for Americans 2005 webpage.

A healthy eating plan:
- Emphasizes fruits, vegetables, whole grains and fat-free or low-fat milk and milk products.
- Includes lean meats, poultry, fish, beans, eggs and nuts.
- Foods low in saturated fats, trans fats, cholesterol, salt (sodium) and added sugars.

The following are tips on how to practice good nutrition this month and every month:

- Eat smaller meals including a vegetable as the center of the plate, with smaller meat and starch servings. Include at least one serving of fruit and vegetable with every meal.
- Drink more water between meals; try veggies or a handful of nuts for a snack and fresh fruit for something sweet.
- Reduce your intake of deep fried foods and cancer-causing trans fats found in processed foods and baked goods.
- Read food labels and reduce the amount of added sugar, corn syrup and salt in the diet. Use fresh herbs and spices to season food instead.”
